A conversation with...

Prof. Hans Borgman, Professor of Information Systems and Digital Business, is the Academic Director for International Affairs, Faculty of Economics and Business, University of Amsterdam.

Prof. Borgman has been affiliated with the UvA's Amsterdam Business School since 2016. Before that he was professor of Business Administration at Leiden University. From 2011 to 2016 he was also professor at the ESC Rennes School of Business, a French Grande École where he was responsible for all doctorate degree programmes including two dual tracks in Beijing, China, and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

He has previously held professorial appointments at the European Business School in Wiesbaden, Germany, and the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, USA.

Let's start with some simple questions...

Students come to us with recurring questions, tied to their main concerns, which are understandable, especially if you think with a «Politecnico frame of mind», and have not yet experienced a different way of doing and thinking.

We would like to pose a few of those questions to our distinguished guest, Prof. Hans Borgman, and to Polimi Professor Tommaso Agasisti, as we trust that their feedback will offer precious guidance, and eventually open the floor to our «Open Mic» discussion, to which you are all invited to participate

Let's start with some simple questions...

Will I be able to find an adequate match between the Host University course offering and my home university degree programme? What will happen if I don't?

Will a study experience abroad delay my graduation?

Would you say it is advisable to spend an extra semester/year studying abroad, instead of starting to work right away? Would the curriculum be improved by a younger age or by an international experience?

Let's start with some simple questions...

How do I know which partner school to select? Which is the best one for me? How do I understand it?

What are the main benefits that come from studying abroad?
